Transcriber's Office
FLOOR DEBATE

April 16, 2002 LB 1185

SENATOR HUDKINS: That's right.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Thank you. And what they've agreed to is what Senator Hudkins laid out, that when the word goes out, let me not say the word, when notification of whatever kind that a volunteer fireperson is summoned, the instant that person is aware of that and makes a move, that person is covered. It shouldn't be necessary for us to use words like "instant" and then explain what that means. When you're giving definitions, a point is reached where you have run out of terms which can clarify a term. Any term you use to clarify it is less clear than the one you're trying to define. So I hope if there is any situation where a company does not want to pay a claim, the legislative history will be looked at and it will be clear what it is that we've attempted to do. There is a verse that says some things are so clear a fool cannot err. Well, obviously, fools can err when something is very clear as was the case that we're dealing with here and trying to correct. I was also mentioning to Senator Hudkins, as we were trying to craft some language, the difficulty that happens to a Legislature or that one is faced with when people have no institutional memory. We will be here to know what was gone through to get this language, when the language we're trying to amend was clear enough. A new crop of people may be approached by the insurance industry, who will have some very oily, smooth-tongued individuals, who will be able to show them that, well, maybe this is not as clear as it needs to be, and some changes could be made, and they may offer, the insurance companies, that is, the very language we're trying to get away from now. But if they would try that while those of us who are here now who knew how we got to the place where we will be with the language we're offering, we could tell them, no dice. We took this language because your industry said they could not understand the other that we had. So I do not see where there should be any controversy as far as our adopting this language. And I hope anybody else who speaks will just repeat what has been said in other words, if that is necessary, to make it crystal clear what our intention is. Thank you, Madam President.

SENATOR SCHIMEK: Thank you, Senator Chambers. The next person is Senator Connealy.
